ACADEMIC DEPARTMENT.—The studies of the Academic Department are arranged according to the courses of study which the different pupils are pursuing, and lead to a Regent's diploma which is required for graduation. The form given below contains the course of studies to be pursued, which may be varied by substituting one or more elective subjects chosen from the Regents' course. Two grades often take one or more studies together, thus securing fewer but larger classes, and increasing the interest in the study.

The studies in the grades above the ninth are changed somewhat from year to year, being adapted to the studies offered at the different examinations of the Regents, and arranged to meet the needs of the pupils. Some studies, however, are best taken during the work of particular grades, as rhetoric and algebra in the tenth, geometry and Latin in the eleventh, and Cæsar in the twelfth.
